BAND HISTORY

DIGG on this...the band DIGG is not new to the local music scene. DIGG was originally formed in 2001 by Eric Clark (Lead Vocals and Guitar) and Fred Westcott (Lead Guitar and Vocals). DIGG was a mainstay on the local music scene for six years. Although they worked with various drummers and bassists along the way, Eric and Fred were always involved with the band.

The band took a bit of a hiatus around 2008 as members went on to do other various projects and focus on other things such as work and their family lives. The band by no means was dead, just sort of sitting idle. Eric and Fred continued over the years to play with various local musicians hoping to find that "chemistry" that originally catapulted DIGG onto the local music scene in 2002. Fast forward 20 years, and drummer Jeff Owens answered a Craigslist ad posted by Fred to just get together and play from time to time. There was no intention of gigging, but there was an undeniable musical connection. Jeff had been playing with several local acts such as Tyler and with blues guitarist Jimmy Wolf. They developed some good musical rapport, and that began a two-year hunt for a bass player, again, to just sit in and jam. After working with various bassists, DIGG found bassist Jaymee Hyde, another musician that was looking to get back out there after being involved with local bands Pleasing Iris and Bad Panda over the years. The pieces sort of fell in place and the chemistry was back, and DIGG now had time and desire to focus on again putting together a great rock 'n' roll show.

DIGG likes to think of themselves as a "hard-er rock band" but certainly not a metal band. People can expect to hear much of the same stuff that they hear on the radio such as Stone Temple Pilots, Alice in Chains, Seether, Godsmack, Fuel, Lit, Buckcherry, Shinedown, Bush, Limp Bizkit, and a couple rocked up classic remakes along the way. DIGG had a reputation for bringing high energy rock to the area, and this newest iteration continues the tradition of bringing a top-notch musical and visual performance to the stage.

DIGG is currently working on their first full length album of original tracks.

MUSICIAN BIOGRAPHIES

ERIC CLARK - LEAD VOCALS, GUITAR

ERIC has been playing music most of his life - not as a singer but as a guitar player. In 2002, as one of the founding members of DIGG, Eric's intent was to just play guitar. However, after months of searching for a singer, he decided to take on the lead vocal role. Little did he know it would become his passion, and he has served as the lead singer of DIGG in all of its incarnations ever since.

Eric has played in several popular area bands including Syndicate & Simple Props. He has had the opportunity to open for national acts, shared the stage with many of the best players in CNY and spent a period of time as the "Rock Doc" for major tours coming through CNY such as Disturbed, The Red, Chavelle, Breaking Benjamin, Seether and many more.

Eric has 12 years of service as a veteran, serving during Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

FRED WESTCOTT - LEAD GUITAR, VOCALS

Fred started playing guitar at age 17. His early influences include Motley Crue, Ratt, DIO, The Scorpions, but as he progressed, his tastes became a little more aggressive...he began getting into Metallica, Overkill, Testament, and Slayer...if it was loud and heavy, Fred was into it.

His first band was called Toxic Shock in the early 90's and they enjoyed playing at local venues such as Coleman's in Rome – don't go looking for it, it's long gone! From there, he spent many years playing with various local bands and musicians until he met Eric and was a co-founder of DIGG in the early 2000s.

JAYMEE HYDE - BASS GUITAR, VOCALS

Jaymee is a native central New Yorker and has been a part of the local music scene playing bass in many different bands such as Tantrum, Rival Minds, Pleasin' Iris and Bad Panda.

Heavily influenced by Charles Berthoud and Billy Sheehan, he started playing bass in his adolescence and brings a strong presence that compliments the DIGG style.

He is an avid bass collector with over 20 in his collection.

He doesn't say much...

JEFF OWENS - DRUMS, VOCALS

Jeff started playing the drums at the age of seven when he received a toy drum kit with paper heads for Christmas. That set lasted a day...literally, one solitary day. That didn't stop him from dressing as Peter Criss for Halloween six years in a row. Ok...he did that until he was 15...

Jeff honed his chops playing open mic nights and with anyone who would allow him to sit in, including his brother Greg, who was a guitar player at first, but eventually switched to bass. Together, they sharpened their skills as a rhythm section and went on to form the band The Randys in 1998 and performed in the tri-state area for many years, including several appearances on local radio shows, and televised performances on local stations around New York. Jeff has also played with other local acts such as TYLER, and blues player Jimmy Wolf.
